Reheating Instructions

Remember that the meat is already smoked and cooked. If you set your oven temperature any higher than 170-175 degrees, then you will overcook the meat. You are just re-heating

Take your cooked ham, brisket or turkey out of the refrigerator or freezer and place in a foil pan on your countertop or stovetop. Let the meat get to room temperature. Turn your oven on the lowest temperature setting (usually 170-175 degrees). Place the meat and the pan inside the oven for approximately two hours. Then take the meat out of the oven & check to see if it has reached the desired temperature you like to eat at.

Keep the meat wrapped tight in the plastic wrap and foil to keep all the juices inside until you are ready to eat.

Thank you for allowing Mac's BBQ & Catering to provide your family's Thanksgiving Day meat and/or meal. We appreciate your business! Please contact us if you are needing catering for your Christmas or New Year's events.
